GAS AGAIN

SHALL WE HAVE IT, AND WHEN?

A Little Ancient History and Some More Recent—The Community Demands It

It is about three years since Glendale and Tropicco were led to believe that a real gas company would be doing business here inside of twelve months. It was definitely promised, indeed, and a number of our local capitalists went into the project in good faith investing several thousand dollars in the stock of the company, while many others signed contracts to take gas from the Southern California Gas Circuit company. A permit was given by the city trustees and considerable pipe was laid in the streets in the central part of town.

Not being endowed with mind reading ability we are unable to say whether it ever was the intention of the promoters to do any other work here aside from "working" our people, but we doubt very seriously whether such an honest intention ever found lodgment in their minds—at any rate the Southern California Gas Circuit company after laying the pipe spoken of—connecting no place with anywhere in particular, left this section alone (having sold all the stock possible) and sought new fields. Every country newspaper in this section of the county that would lend its columns to the purpose of these conscienceless promoters (taking pay in stock) was used as the medium by which an attempt was made, with considerable success, no doubt, to induce investors to buy stock in the concern which had "done so much in Glendale."

These advertisements even appeared in one or more of the Los Angeles dailies, while the country press from Hollywood to Huntington Beach gave them all sorts of "display" positions.

At last the patience of the men in Glendale and Tropicco who had in good faith put good money into the scheme, became exhausted and they took steps to interest outside capitalists and organize another company that would actually furnish gas to the community. They were successful in this and in securing the names of about 800 consumers who agreed to use the commodity when furnished by the new company. At this juncture when it really seemed that business was going to be done, appeared the Domestic Gas company (nearly akin to the Pacific Light and Power company) whose agents "worked" a large portion of the community successfully and secured several hundred subscribers also who agreed to take gas of this third concern at $1.00 per thousand cubic feet (the former company having put the price at $1.25 per thousand). The appearance of this third company, well known to be quite capable of fulfilling its promises, caused the second company to cease, for the time at least, all efforts to do business. The Domestic Gas company in the pages of this paper on June 26th published this announcement:

"We will have gas in Glendale in 90 days. If you want gas now is the time. Sign a contract."

If the Domestic Gas company fulfills its published promise, Glendale and Tropicco will have gas to burn by October 1st. The principal question of interest to this community now is "Does the Domestic company mean business, or is it simply attempting to hold the field against all other comers without doing anything further to give us this much-needed commodity?" If the Domestic company does not keep its promise, it will be placed in the unenviable position of being a close second to the Southern California Gas Circuit company in the race for the distinction of being the biggest fakir that has graced this community by its presence. But then, much can be done in sixty days and we hope to see the Domestic company make good.

But should it not do so, what recourse have we? The city of Glendale has just voted $60,000 of a bond issue to provide the city with electric light and power. There is a more general demand for gas than for electricity; it comes nearer to being a necessity, as it serves for fuel as well as light. The fact that 800 families have declared their desire for it, is almost equivalent to a mandate. They have given voice to their necessity and it must be supplied. The community will not submit much longer to the humiliation of occupying a position in which big concerns or little ones are permitted to "work" us to their advantage and our detriment. There is an excellent field here for a gas company to do business in. But the latest development in the situation shows that a private company that would essay to supply us with gas must be prepared abundantly with the sinews of war, or be forced to the wall by the biggest concerns.

Our people have two months in which to think over this matter before the time limit of the Domestic Gas Co. expires. This paper has never been enthusiastic over the question of municipal ownership and we have no desire to add anything to our tax rate as long as it can be avoided, but if within a few months we have no assurance that gas will be supplied to this community by a private concern, we shall strongly advocate a bond issue for a municipal plant. There is a limit to the amount of buncoing that our people will submit to.

"THIRD MONDAY" AT THE GLENDALE COUNTRY CLUB.

On Monday afternoon the Maids and Matrons of the Country Club met with their guests to enjoy a social hour or two together. The club rooms were appropriately decorated for the occasion in red, white and blue, the July colors.

Over mantels, from the chandeliers and over doorways hung the stars and stripes, while from every conceivable place about the rooms fluttered little baby flags that insisted on being noticed. Red geraniums were artistically banked in corners against a background of green ferns and in the empty fireplace the red flowers mingled with shasta daisies gave the finishing touches to this artistic arrangement.

As every one had been requested to "bring needles, thread and thimble," curiosity was soaring at an alarming rate of speed when small potatoes and wooden spindles were passed, but Mrs. Peterson, the hostess, relieved the strain while sheets of white tissue paper were being passed by explaining that as it was "Children's Day" they were to make dolls of the potatoes and dress them according to each one's idea of the correct mode for a potato doll.

In twenty minutes all dolls were collected and went through a trying ordeal before an executing body of judges, and the doll dressed by Mrs. John Logan alone stood the test and won the prize, although it was conceded the others were good.

After the fun was over the ladies engaged in a very interesting program of music and reading.

The first number, a piano solo by Miss Emma Williams, was given in her usual accomplished manner, followed by a reading of much pathos by Mrs. Heiman, who was so heartily received that she responded with a little Scotch dialect. Julius Kranz gave two violin selections which were greatly enjoyed as were the lullabies sung by the Hare sisters, the Eagle Rock quartet.

A very charming feature of the afternoon was the little flower girls, Kathleen Campbell, Shirley Chase, Dorothy Hinkley and Virginia Holman, who presented each artist with a bouquet of roses, the little tots looking like rose buds themselves as they came into the room with their arms full of the bright blossoms.

Refreshments served in the dining room concluded the afternoon. Assisting ladies were Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. Rice of Tropicco and Mrs. Belford. Out of town guests were Mrs. Young of Los Angeles; Mrs. C. E. Hamilton of Eagle Rock; Mrs. Shaffer of Los Angeles; Miss Bolling of Bemming, Missouri; Mrs. Elerton of Denver, Colo.; and Mrs. B. A. Goddard of San Francisco.

The home guests included Mrs. Kirby, Miss Eula Richardson and Mrs. Kilgore.

Although there have not been many new buildings started during the past week, the indications, judging from the number of jobs being figured on and plans in course of preparation, are that within another fortnight or less there will be several new residences started in Glendale and just outside the city limits.

Cole and Parker are building a $1500 house on Louise street near the wash. Mr. Ogg has plans for and will soon begin the construction of a fine residence in the Livingston tract, that will cost $2500 or $3000. John T. WEST GLENDALE SCHOOL.

Although this is vacation time there are still busy days noticeable around the West Glendale school house. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons are set apart for recreation time to the juvenile patrons of the school and they are taking full advantage of the chance afforded them to enjoy to the utmost the facilities which the trustees have given them in the way of apparatus and implements of sport with which the school grounds are equipped. The library is open every Tuesday afternoon, the principal, Mrs. F. G. Taylor giving freely of her time to oversee the children at their sports and to distribute books to applicants. The four teachers employed last year gave such general satisfaction that they have been re-elected for the coming school year. They are Mrs. F. G. Taylor, principal; Misses Erickson, Yarnell and Miller. It is probable that two more teachers will have to be employed during the year, as the growth of the school is phenomenal.

The orchestra of the First Methodist church of Los Angeles is preparing for a grand concert, to be given in that church the last Tuesday evening in September. This is one of a series of very interesting concerts which are given by this organization every four months, and the leader, E. B. Valentine of Glendale is planning to make this the best and most interesting one yet given. With this end in view, Mr. Valentine most earnestly desires all music lovers who play orchestra instruments to co-operate with him in making this concert a success, and those wishing to take part will be welcome at the home of Mrs. J. T. Kirkham, corner of Central and Palmer avenues, Tropicco, on Tuesday evening of each week for practice. The program will consist of comic and grand opera and smaller orchestras outside of the city having been asked to join the First Methodist orchestra for that evening, it is thought this will be the largest instrumentation so far presented in Los Angeles. E. B. Valentine is a musician of some note as well as a very efficient leader, and those attending are assured of a rare musical treat. Admission free, but collection taken.

Our president and a number of the members of our union attended a county institute which was held at Burbank on Tuesday, July 20. It is needless to say we had a pleasant and profitable meeting, having with us the county president and other county officers. It was an all-day meeting and was also a very pleasant social function. We had an elaborate lunch at noon, and all the ripe luscious peaches we could eat, with a variety of other fruits furnished by the Burbank members. We also enjoyed having with us Sister Burton and boys.

On Friday, July 30, we are to have a picnic at the home of one of our members, Mrs. Wells. We are all expected to take the 10:30 car and go out together, each one taking lunch, and we will have a regular picnic dinner.

Mrs. Phelps of Los Angeles, our county president, and other county officers are expected to be present.

If you want a flour made near home you will find no better flour than the Pasadena Milling Co.'s "Best." It is made of the choicest California and eastern wheats scientifically blended. For sale by the leading grocers of Glendale.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

We are sending out this week a number of notices to subscribers in regard to their subscriptions. Their prompt attention to the matter will enable us to get through the dog days more comfortably and will therefore be appreciated fully.

Prof. Willett of the Chicago University declares that women are responsible for the chief evils of life. We have suspected this for a long time. Now ladies, please be good!

In the Mitchell murder case in Los Angeles, half a dozen doctors, answering a hypothetical question, make the defendant out to be insane while another half dozen are of the opinion that the answer is sanity. Opinions of doctors continue to be quite as infallible as those entertained by lawyers.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has declared Mr. Burbank's "Wonderberry" a failure, the judges of that body asserting that it is worthless. Mr. Burbank on the contrary asserts that the Wonderberry is all right. Mr. John Lewis Childs, the getter up of those gorgeous catalogues which exploit more wonders every year than any other nurseryman ever thought of, has not been heard from. Meanwhile several of the weedy things are still undug in our gardens.

This is the way Colliers' Magazine looks at it: "The people of California would hardly elect Aldrich to the senate if he came before them. Yet they do the same when they elect Flint and Perkins."

The Los Angeles Times which has discovered in Senator Flint the genius of statesmanship since the latter has proved such a ready follower of Aldrich and the "Interests," and which is also a fervent admirer of President Taft, will now be watched with considerable interest in its efforts to swing towards two opposite points at the same instant.

But the Times is capable—dreadfully capable!

THE ANCIENT PHYSICIAN.

Honor a physician with the honor due unto him for the uses which ye may have of him; for the Lord hath created him.

For of the Most High cometh healing, and he shall receive honor of the King.

The skill of the physician shall lift up his head; and in the sight of great men he shall be in admiration.

The Lord hath created medicines out of the earth; and he that is wise will not abhor them.

Was not the water made sweet with wood, that the virtue thereof might be known?

And he hath given men skill, that he might be honored in his marvellous works.

With such doth he heal and taketh away their pains.

Of such doth the apothecary make a confection; and of his works there is no end; and from him is peace over all the earth.

My son, in thy sickness be not negligent; but pray unto the Lord, and he will make thee whole.

Leave off from sin, and order thine hands aright, and cleanse thy heart from all wickedness.

Give a sweet savor, and a memorial of fine flour; and make a fat offering. Then give place to the physician, for the Lord hath created him; let him not go from thee, for thou hast need of him.

There is a time when in their hands there is good success.

For they shall also pray unto the Lord, that he would prosper that which they give for ease and remedy to prolong life.

He that sinneth before his Maker, let him fall into the hand of the physician.—The Book of Ecclesiasticus.

MR. HENEY'S RECORD.

Our esteemed contemporaries, the Los Angeles Times and the Los Angeles Express represent two extremes of public opinion and it pains us that we are unable to agree with either of them. Take for instance their attitude toward Mr. Heney and the Calhoun trial. We have recently received a copy of a pamphlet containing "Some Facts Regarding Francis J. Heney, etc." It is a plain statement of undisputable facts, consisting of copies of the records on file in the department of justice at Washington and elsewhere. These records show that Mr. Heney received from the United States treasury between March 20th, 1905 and January 21st, 1909, the sum of $69,025. They show also that after having received for "full payment" in one or two cases, he received further payments on account of the same case. One payment of $10,000 was "on account of services as special assistant to the attorney general," but gives no dates when such service was rendered. These subsequent payments made after having received in full were made in both the Binger Herman and in the Hyde-Diamond and Benson cases. Neither is it shown that any of these sums were paid to him on account of expenses. Now this does not on the surface of it reflect discredit upon Mr. Heney as much as upon the U. S. government and its way of doing business. But when these facts are taken into consideration with the further fact, that while Mr. Heney was in the receipt of this money from the general government he received $40,000 from Spreckles for prosecuting the graft cases in San Francisco and the additional fact that he was posing as a disinterested patriot who worked for nothing and boarded himself, it stamps him as a humbug of the first class, and the American people although easily humbugged, are not naturally admirers of the humbugger.

Now when the Express says that this pamphlet is an effort on the part of the "Calhoun press to lie about" Mr. Heney and only deserves to be consigned to the waste basket, we demur. We do not care whether this pamphlet emanates from Mr. Calhoun's press bureau or not, very probably it does, but it shows up matters and individuals which the people of the United States are interested in. While we have always been among the admirers of Mr. Roosevelt, it is very apparent to us that under his administration the affairs of the department of justice in regard to expenditures were conducted in anything but a business-like manner; in fact, it looks as if the word "graft" now in so general use, and frequently misapplied, no doubt, might well be doing service in the case of Francis J. Heney and the effort on the part of some professional reformers to make a hero of him, induces a feeling of weariness.

A DEMOCRATIC STATESMAN.

Senator Gore, the blind representative in the upper house of Congress from Oklahoma, is making for himself an enviable reputation as a statesman in this his first term in the national legislature. We do not know of any other member in either house who has shown in the contest over the tariff question, those qualities which are the distinguishing characteristics of greatness in political life. None other that we know of in either party has shown his devotion to such high ideals. He is not in the "Chamber of Commerce" class of representatives whose sole idea of duty in that highest legislative body in the world, seems to be to attempt to get every possible favor for his immediate section, regardless of the rest of the country. He is evidently not prompted solely by a local but by a national spirit. Oklahoma is an oil producing state and its people regardless of party are clamoring for a tariff on oil. An extract from one of his speeches on this subject shows a spirit too rare in public life.

"I confess there is a good deal of human nature in me. I wish that this cup might pass from my lips. Many of the independent producers in the state of Oklahoma are my personal and my political friends. They would render me any possible service, and I reciprocate. I would render them any possible service that I could without violence to my conscience and my convictions. Perhaps my attitude on this occasion is attributable rather to verdure than to virtue. Perhaps when I have grown older in statecraft and in political finesse I may revise both my views and my politics. Mr. President, I am not unaware that I may now be making a serious, a fatal political mistake. I am not unaware that I may be ordering a political casket. I am not unaware that I may be like the ancient queen lighting my own funeral pyre. But, sir, I shall never demand a protective duty in behalf of a product or an industry in my own state until I am willing to concede protection to every other industry in every other state of the American Union."

EDUCATION AND LAWS.

The Rev. W. S. Young at the Presbyterian church last Sunday preached a sermon which contained one or two thoughts at least well worthy of attention. In the course of his address he said: "While I would not, of course, decry education given by our schools, our colleges and universities, recognizing fully its value, the fact remains that education does not make a man better in the highest sense; it gives him more power, but that power may be used either for good or evil. Neither does the making of new laws make men better in the highest sense. Reform is not necessarily a better form, etc." The reversed gentleman expressed in the above quotations, views which are entertained by a great many thoughtful people among the world's well wishers. There are a great many who are not in sympathy with the "reform" movements of the present time, particularly the semi-religious reforms, because they do not believe that they have anything to do with "pure religion and undefiled," but on the contrary miss its spirit entirely. They believe that the churches which depend upon things other than the preaching of the Word and the practice of its precepts in public and private life by their members, are not however prosperous they may appear, following in the footsteps of the Master.

But if it should be admitted that learning does not make men better, would we still be justified in continuing to place ever increasing stress upon its attainment?

If the curriculum of the schools does not make men better, should the system not be changed so as to accomplish that high object? Morality is scarcely taught in the schools and religion not at all for fear that it might not be of the brand entirely acceptable to every patron. The Bible is excluded, although admittedly the finest classic in existence. Is it true that education such as is generally taught in our schools does not make men better? If so, how can we excuse ourselves for continuing in a course which absorbs such a large proportion of the life of youth? Do we want to make men better or only more fit? These are questions of serious moment and more attention will be given to them in the near future, we believe, than has been in the past.

Whiskey and Snake Bites.

Perhaps there is no case in which, to the popular mind, whiskey is more absolutely essential than as a remedy for snake bites. For generation after generation this doctrine has been handed down from father to son and from mother to daughter, and it has been confidently believed, even by many good temperance people that though every other reason should be swept away, the fact that there must always be whiskey on hand for snake bites, would forever prevent the entire prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors, and many others have felt that this would likewise prevent the utter extermination of rattlesnakes and other venomous serpents; for it was believed that the fact that whiskey is necessary for snake bites would likewise make snake bites necessary for whiskey, and men make it necessary and would go into the snake breeding business to keep up the supply, just as some have gone into the wolf breeding business to keep up the supply for the sake of the bounty on scalps. The snake would become too important and necessary an adjunct to the comfort of life to be allowed to become extinct. Every man would need his own particular snake, or perhaps a whole boxful of them, to bite him whenever he felt he would like a dose of snake bite medicine.

But alas! this last refuge of personal liberty, the right to be bitten by snakes is about to pass away like so many other fond beliefs of our innocent childhood's days.

The Literary Digest of June 19, 1909, has an article entitled "Snake Medicine Up to Date." It says:

"To most people, even at the present day, treatment for snake bite means simply whiskey and plenty of it. This however is not approved by the modern expert. He knows exactly what are the properties of snake venom, what its effects on the human system are, and what will counteract them. The treatment of snake bite has been subjected to considerable scientific study, especially of late. Dr. A. Calmette, director of the Pasteur Institute at Lille, France, has probably done more than any one else to put the treatment of venomous snake bites on a scientific basis. In this country Drs. S. Weir Mitchell, Reichard, and Noguchi have searched for an anti-venomous serum for the cure of snake bites on the same principle as the antidiathermia serum, for the cure of diphtheria. It has been learned that these serums are specific, that is, for cobra poison we must have a cobra antivenom, and so on for the other distinct varieties of snake poisons.

Numerous experiments, supplemented by careful clinical observation, have shown conclusively that whiskey is positively harmful instead of being beneficial. Dr. Ellis S. Allen of Kentucky recently performed a series of experiments with the copperhead moccasin to determine the antidotal value of alcohol. The animals employed were live full-grown rats, the normal diet of the snake. Dr. Allen says:

"The action of alcohol caused the rats to succumb earlier to the effect of the snake venom than did the rats that were bitten and injected and had no alcohol." Snake venom, Dr. Allen says, weakens the heart and lowers the blood pressure. Alcohol still further lowers tension and depresses the vitality of the white blood cells, the defenders of the body and the agents which neutralize and destroy the snake poison. Many a man has been killed by huge doses of whiskey instead of dying as the result of snake poisoning. "Nothing could be more irrational and dangerous than the popular notion concerning the antagonism between whiskey and snake poisoning." He then goes on to give directions for the employment of the various anti-venoms, or serums, the use of permanganate of potash, and chlorated lime.

Alack and alas! what will become of the arguments that now bolster up the liquor traffic when the present popular misinformation shall have been dispelled by the ever increasing light of scientific truth? Its support has long been utterly inadequate to the normal mind unblinded by prejudice or self-interest, but even the few remaining shreds of error to which "the trade" and its supporters have confidently clung are now being dissolved as the mists of the morning and soon will be no more.

THAT JOG IN ADAMS STREET.

Messrs. Goode, Lawson and Frank Campbell, the referees appointed to determine the amount of money to be paid Mr. Price for the piece of land 25x195 feet that juts out into Adams street, corner of Third, held a hearing on the matter at the city hall Wednesday morning. A number of real estate men and others were present and gave testimony in regard to the value of the property. Evidence of witnesses for both sides seemed to agree pretty well that the value of the land is about $20 per foot on Third street, but further than that there was a wide difference in the testimony, some of them being of the opinion that the trees to be removed are of great value and others being equally sure that they are worth very little. The referees took the matter under advisement and will probably arrive at and announce their decision in a day or two.

THE "SPINELESS CACTUS."

A copy of this fearful and wonderful sheet has been sent us by our friend, Sowl, of Casa Verdugo. Naturally we sent encroachment upon this field by a bunch of imports from Los Angeles and the rest of the world, but there are unmistakable signs in the sheet referred to which point unerringly to its early dissolution, from which we derive comfort. We know that man Winfield Hogaboom, whose name unblushingly adorns (sic) the head of the editorial column and it's just like him to come out to Casa Verdugo by night and cast slurs and other things at the city of Verdugo-by-the-wash, begosh, and then steal away to San Pedro and pretend to be a journalist—but when the Elks come again, gentle Annie, we will be prepared for him by having things nailed down and the city marshal on guard. Many of the things in the Spineless are real libelous—the slur at our friend and contemporary, King Edward, is real unkind and must have been written by the Irish reporter. Altogether we do not approve of the Spineless for obvious reasons and if our subscribers leave us and go over to this our rival we shall feel real badly.

THE BANK OF GLENDALE OCCUPIES NEW QUARTERS.

The Bank of Glendale, between banking hours Saturday and the opening hour Monday morning, moved into its new quarters in its new building on the southeast corner of Fourth and Glendale avenue. Mr. Jacob Fink, the fresco painter, and interior decorator, has put some of his best efforts upon the walls of the new banking room, the result being a pleasing succession of views typical of Southern California. These include representations of a seaport crowded with shipping, orchards of fruit, fields of grain and vineyard, oil derricks and pleasant homes. The ceiling of the room which is composed of steel plates, practically fireproof, is also tinted in attractive shades of color most pleasing to the eye. The new vault of the bank is fitted up with a burglar alarm connected with a gong on the outside of the building which is warranted to alarm the town if there is any unauthorized tampering with the safe outside of banking hours. The vault is large enough to permit of a set of shelves with lock boxes for rental to patrons, which will soon be supplied. The lobby is supplied with a comfortable corner where patrons find convenience for business or can pass away comfortably occasional minutes of waiting. Mr. F. H. Vesper, president, and Mr. J. F. McIntyre, cashier, after three or four days spent in getting accustomed to their new quarters, are again wearing their usual expressions of contentment and hospitality.

HELPED THE FAIR.

In giving credit last week to various individuals who assisted in making the board of trade fair a success, the following were omitted: The M. A. Gunst Cigar Co., who donated a box of cigars; Miss Cora Hickman, who gave liberal assistance in soliciting for the cause; Mr. J. C. Fleming, the jeweler, at 531 Broadway, Los Angeles, who made a generous donation of a watch.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

July 25th, 1909.

(Copyright, 1909, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)
Paul's Second Missionary Journey—Athens, Acts xviii:16-34.

Golden Text—God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth. John iv:24.

Verse 16—Can any true man, at this time, see the folly and sin which thousands so eagerly follow, without his spirit being stirred?

Verse 17—Notwithstanding that we all, necessarily, have frames and callings to pursue, should, or should not, our chief concern be the tremendous issues involved in spiritual truth, and why? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 18-21—The Epicureans and Stoics had a contrary philosophy of life, state briefly what they each taught.

Which brings the more lasting happiness, and develops the nobler character, a life devoted to the pleasures of sense, or a life devoted to service for others, and to self-denial?

What as a matter of fact, is the substance of what Paul taught?

Should we lend a respectful ear to all new theories of life, and eternity, or reject them without examination?

Verse 22—Which is the better man, an active skeptic, or an indifferent and thoughtless Christian?

Which is preferable to be ever speculating about God, or to have no thought concerning him?

Is belief in and a longing for God, peculiar to Christianity?

May a heathen who has never come into touch with Christianity, find out, and know, the true God?

What then is the advantage for a true-hearted heathen, coming into contact with Christianity?

Verse 23—Can one man who knows God, be the means of imparting that knowledge to another who desires to know him?

Verse 24—How do we know that God made all things?

God does fill heaven and earth with his presence; but does he not also dwell in temples that are made in which to worship him?

Verse 25—While God does not need the support of man's hands, does he not desire the worship and love of men's hearts?

How does God give to all "life and breath, and all things?"

Will we in heaven be able to see God, in any different way from the way in which it is our privilege to see him now?

Verse 26—What is the evidence that all-races of men, sprang from the same original stock?

Has God had anything to do with the national, and geographical, divisions of the globe, as they exist today?

Has God had anything to do with our present individual conditions?

Verses 27-28—What is both the chief joy and object of life?

Is it possible for every man to find God if he will but seek him, and what is the only condition for seeking him?

How do you conceive of the thought that "in him we live and move and have our being" can you illustrate the thought with air, that is both in us, and around us?

Verse 29—Can any work of art represent God to any practical advantage?

Verses 30-31—What makes the need for repentance?

In what way will Jesus judge the world?

Verse 32—Why did some mock when they heard of the resurrection?

Verses 33-34—Did all who were true to God accept Paul's message, and were all untrue to God who rejected it?

TROPIC CHURCH NOTES. Presbyterian.

By Rev. Henderson C. Shoemaker.

The Sunday school of our church enjoyed a picnic to Eastlake Park, Wednesday of this week. The scholars and teachers met in front of the church and the journey to the park was made in hay racks. Two large racks were comfortably filled and in addition to this a smaller wagon was needed to accommodate the large crowd. When the park was reached the youngsters and teachers alike participated in various games, after which dinner was served on the large tables. Following dinner every one enjoyed rides on the lake and took in the other amusements to their heart's content. They arrived back home at nearly sunset a tired but happy crowd.
